

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

5 A liquid crystal display (LCD) device, with an organic electroluminescent display (OLED) element serving as a light source, a common electrode, and a polarizer which is a wire grid polarizer or a thin film polarizer are formed on a lower substrate. A pixel electrode is formed on an upper substrate. According to the invention, a thinner integrated LCD device with improved light utilization efficiency is obtained.